Lower Costs

On average, surgical fees at surgery centers are approximately 40 percent less than in a hospital setting. The cost to use the operating or procedure room, which is separate from surgeons' fees, is far lower when you opt for an outpatient facility like the Revere Health American Fork Surgery Center.

Choice

Physicians and patients now have a choice in northern Utah County of where to perform a surgery, which allows you to select a location that is more affordable and more responsive to patients' needs.

Affordable

A surgical center is specialized, and because it's separate from a hospital it has lower overhead and can pass those financial savings on to the patient. For most procedures, there is an all-inclusive, clearly identifiable facility charge so pricing is transparent and patients have a better understanding of costs before surgery.

Dependable

When you choose an outpatient surgical center, your scheduled surgery is less likely to be delayed or bumped by non-related emergencies. In addition, turnaround time between surgeries is as much as three times faster than in a hospital, which means less waiting for patients and family members.

Comfortable

The more intimate and personal setting of an outpatient facility like Revere Health American Fork Surgery Center allows patients and their families to relax and feel more comfortable before, during and after the surgery.

Insurance Approved

Many insurance companies and employer insurance plans favor outpatient surgery centers over hospitals because they know how much these facilities can save patients. Some payers tailor reimbursement schedules to create an incentive to use an outpatient center. Revere Health American Fork Surgery Center accepts most insurances as well as Medicare and Medicaid.
